

Finalists announced for MEDEA Awards 2018

The organisers of the annual MEDEA Awards are delighted to announce the 6 finalists for the 2018 Annual MEDEA Awards in the user-generated and professionally-produced categories.

The finalists (in alphabetical order) are:

- Learning History by Mandoulides Schools (Greece)
- Mission Offi'Sim by Université de Lorraine (France)
- On Being a Scientist by Leiden University (Netherlands)
- Rethinking 'Us' & 'Them': Integration and Diversity in Europe by Migration Matters e.V. (Germany)
- Risky Business by Ulster University (United Kingdom)
- Suffrage Tales by the National Archives (United Kingdom)

Each finalist will be represented at the annual Media & Learning Conference entitled 'Video in Higher Education' taking place this year in Leuven, Belgium on 14-15 June when the winners in both categories will be announced during the MEDEA Awards Ceremony.

Entries this year came from all over Europe as well as the US, Canada, Russia and Indonesia and highlighted the many different ways in which video is increasingly used for teaching and learning purposes in a host of different contexts from skills and knowledge acquisition to helping students explore new environments and opportunities for learning.
